TAFT AND JAPS DINE TOGETHER

TOAST IS DRUNK TO HEALTH OF EMPEROR

President Attends Luncheon Given by Commercial Club of Minneapolis.

[Associated Press Telegram]

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 26.—The 50 members of the Japanese commission to the United States were given a hearty welcome to the country by President Taft, who assured them of the lasting friendship of the American people, paid a tribute to their qualities of industry and patriotism, and in conclusion drank a toast to the emperor of Japan as "the warm and sincere friend of America," amid great enthusiasm among both his Japanese and American hearers.

The meeting with the Japanese was at a luncheon at the Lafayette club, on the shores of beautiful Lake Minnetonka, 20 miles out of the city, tendered by the Commercial club of Minneapolis.

President Taft scouted the idea that there had ever been the slightest danger of trouble between Japan and America. He paid a high compliment to the military valor of Japan when the country was "fighting in defense of her rights and the maintenance of her prestige on the field of battle."

"But," he declared, "Japan today is fighting for victories of peace, and we all hope she will succeed. We are not going to yield ourselves in that contest, however, if we can help it."

President Taft's address, which throughout was filled with expressions of the warmest admiration for the Japanese emperor and the Japanese people, followed a speech by Baron Shibusawa, a prominent banker of Tokyo, and chairman of the visiting commission, in which, speaking in his native tongue, he referred to President Taft "as one of the foremost men of the age and a warm and true friend of Japan."

Banzais Fill the Air.
He proposed the health of the president and led his fellow countrymen in three resounding "banzais." Mr. Taft, proposed the health of the emperor with a "banzai," which was caught up and re-echoed by the American guests.

Preceding the luncheon the president was introduced to each member of the Japanese commission, and his hearty words of greeting, his quick recollection of having met many of the visitors during his several visits to Japan and of little incidents in which they had had a part, seemed completely to captivate them, and each man as he passed appeared reluctant to release the president's hand or to curtail the informal exchange of compliments.

Mr. Taft also received the ladies of the party, declaring to Baroness Shibusawa that America wanted to see more of the ladies of Japan, and to encourage their coming to this country with Japan. "It isn't fair," said the president, "that Japan should keep back the most charming of her creatures."

Mrs. Robt. Millan, aged 18, died at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Delos Carpenter at Wild Turkey Lock at 5 o'clock Sunday evening after suffering for about 10 weeks with kidney trouble. Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Millan was married just one year ago and one child was born which is only five weeks old. The death is an unusually sad one because of the extreme youthfulness of the woman and the family and entire community are prostrated by the death.

She leaves besides her husband and child a father and mother and the following brothers and sisters, all of whom live near the old home, Mrs. John Dossch, Chas. Carpenter, Delos Robert, William, Christina, David.

The funeral will be held at the late home at 12:30 Tuesday afternoon in charge of Rev. Irwin of this city and interment will be made at

CITIZENS' LEAGUE WILL MEET TONIGHT

"I can elect any one of the three mayor—either Lewis Haskins, C. N. Barnes or Robert Thompson," is the way R. L. Donley is quoted on the streets today, in speaking of the proposition to run an independent candidate for mayor.

The Civic league has a meeting in Forbes hall this evening when the committee that had the matter of securing a candidate in hand, will file their report and it will be definitely known whether an independent will be put in the field or not.

It is said that should there be, the "daily dry" will again make its appearance and street meetings will be in vogue, such as were waged during the county local option campaign of a year ago.

GREEN AND SULLIVAN WERE AT BUCHTEL

William Green, state president of the United Mine Workers, and leading candidate for international president, was given a cordial ovation down at Buchtel, in the Hocking Valley Saturday when he made an address to several thousand miners, assembled in a sort of second Labor day celebration. The Coshocton man is quoted as making an excellent address. He is deservedly popular in that district.

State Vice President D. H. Sullivan also gave an address that was well received. Pres. Lewis was also a speaker and Percy Tetlow of Columbiana made a good talk.

Messrs Green and Sullivan spent Sunday at their homes in Coshocton and returned to Columbus Monday.

WOMAN HAS LEGAL HOME IN COSHOCTON CO.

Mrs. J. J. Murray is a resident of this county. This has been legally decided by the attorney general of Ohio in a written opinion to the local prosecutor. The unfortunate woman will now probably be brought before the local probate court and adjudged insane as there is no doubt, it is said of her mental condition. The matter has hinged on whether she was a resident of this or Marion Co.

NEEDS MEN VERY BADLY

Where men are not idle, there is prosperity. County Engineer, Hamilton is looking for men and can't find them. He has the job on hands of concreting the bridge floor over the mill race near Lee's mill, and the heat has just about knocked out some of the men. He came to Coshocton on a wheel Monday afternoon looking for men, and finally appeared at police court, offering to stand good for prisoner's fines, if he could get three or four men to help in the work. There were no prisoners.

ILLUMINATIONS FOR BIG NEW YORK FESTIVAL; HEAD OF HUDSON-FULTON COMMITTEE

Tests of the illumination arrangements for the big Hudson-Fulton festival in New York gave the residents of the city and the many early visitors a glimpse of the splendor they were to witness when the celebration should reach its height. These pictures give some idea of the grandeur of Brooklyn bridge when in the glow of myriads of electric lights. Washington arch, the Singer tower, the Metropolitan Life tower, the Times building and all the sky piercing spires of the great city will prevent a picture of splendor such as never has been seen before on this continent. It is doubtful if Paris ever presented a more inspiring picture when illuminated than New York will during the big festival. In recounting the many features of the fete General Stewart L. Woodford, chairman of the Hudson-Fulton celebration committee named about every novel attraction except Halley comet. If he had known that the comet was about due he might have arranged to include it, too. Cook and Peary will be there the biggest fleet of warships ever assembled in western waters will parade day and night, there will be street pageants, military parades, airship contest, fireworks galore, balquets and everything else that goes to make up a genuine American celebration.

Insane Man Cut His Mother With a Paring Knife

White Eyes Township Woman Escapes With Ugly Gashes on Her Hand And Her Son Will Be Sent Back to Massillon Asylum by Judge Ashman.

Mrs. Christian Beingsesser nearly met death at the hands of her son Christian, aged about 25, who has been an inmate of the Massillon hospital for the insane for some time, Saturday morning at their home in White Eyes township, when the insane boy caught her and tried to stab her with a knife used in the household to peel potatoes. The woman managed to escape but not before the boy had cut two ugly gashes across the back of her hands. Her injuries are not serious.

Mr. Beingsesser had gone to Coshocton to do some shopping early Saturday morning leaving his wife at home alone with their son Christian who has been home for the past four weeks on a vacation from the Massillon hospital for the insane where he was sent last April. Just after Mr. Beingsesser left the son became quarrelsome and in searching around in the kitchen found a knife which was used as a potato peeler. He started after his mother with the knife in his hand threatening her life. She was cornered and the man with almost brute strength struck at her with the weapon and before she could get away he had struck her across the back of the hands inflicting two ugly wounds which bled profusely. Mrs. Beingsesser finally got away from the boy and ran through the field to Geo. West who was plowing in a field near by. Mr. West returned to the house with the woman and the boy was locked up in an out kitchen.

In the evening Mrs. Beingsesser went into the kitchen to get some things and the boy ran out the door past her and to the home of Nicholas Barrack about a mile away where he was taken and brought back to his home again.

Sunday Judge Ashman of the probate court was communicated with by the neighbors of the White Eyes vicinity who demand that the boy be sent back to the Massillon home, as they are in fear of their lives. He will probably be sent back at once.

county infirmiry director, being nominated by the Democratic party. His wife has been dead about seven years. Mr. Adams is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Nelson Murphy, of Fresno; and one son, Roe Adams, with whom he made his home.

Anderson Milligan Goes To His Reward

Anderson Milligan, a lifelong and highly respected citizen of Coshocton county, died at his home in Roscoe Sunday afternoon at 12:35 after suffering for about two years from a cancer. His wife dropped dead November 12, 1908 and the same pall bearers who bore her to her grave will perform the same sad duty at the funeral of her husband.

Mr. Milligan was born in Bethlehem township October 13, 1831. He was married to Isabelle Decker October 21, 1874. He is survived by six children as follows: C. O. Milligan, Mrs. C. N. Randles, Ward, Walter and Marcia Milligan, all of Roscoe, and Mrs. Chas. F. Duggan, of Coshocton. He is also survived by three brothers and one sister: J. E. Milligan, of Twin Falls, Idaho; B. F. Milligan, of Keene; F. M. Milligan and Mrs. Wm. Bechtol, of Bethlehem township.

Mr. Milligan had long been a member of the M. P. church and he possessed all the attributes of a true Christian. His early life was spent on a farm. For several years he conducted a stone quarry on the Haight farm near Roscoe. For the last two years he had been connected with the Gray Hardware Co. He had undergone two operations but death finally triumphed.

Short funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Hushour Tuesday morning at 10:30 at the late home. The funeral sermon will be delivered at Prairie Chapel and interment made at Prairie Chapel cemetery.

Coshocton County Sheep Win Prizes In Pennsylvania

Coshocton County sheep landed with both feet over in Pennsylvania last week. J. J. Scheetz, the well known Keene sheep raiser returned Monday morning from the Washington, Pa. fair with his flock of 13 head of Black Top Spanish Marino sheep, and instead of being like the famed ones of little Mary's, who left their tails behind them, these all came home bearing premium ribbons.

Mr. Scheetz' flock took every first and second premium that was offered and also the special prize of $20 offered by the Black Top Breeding Assn. of Washington—a prize that never but once before went outside of that county. It is a great sheep district and the list of exhibitors was very large. The conquest made by the Coshocton sheen was therefore of unusual significance.

Mr. Scheetz is of course delighted and expects to exhibit at either the Canton or Newark fair. He will have the sheep at the local fair in October.

After suffering for 17 days from a complication of appendicitis and peritonitis, Albert Bowers, the 19 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bowers who lives between Warsaw and Spring Mountain, died Sunday morning at 2 o'clock. He is the youngest member of a family of five children, and was a member of the class of 1910, who will march in the funeral procession. The Warsaw schools were closed Monday, to attend the funeral, which was held at the Warsaw M. E. church at 3 o'clock, the Rev. Funk and Rev. Smithson of Nettie having charge. Interment was made in the Warsaw cemetery. The pall bearers were James Harrah, Harry Kaser, Daniel Shaw, Henry Funk, Byron Fisher and Chas. Snow.

Fred Compton went to Delaware Monday noon to spend the week and help in the "rushing" of men into his fraternity.

Face Burned In Gas Explosion

Miss Phoebe Slimm, housekeeper at the Lewis McClain home on the corner of Chestnut and Third-sts., was painfully but not seriously burned Sunday afternoon by an explosion of gas. Miss Slimm struck a match to light the gas range. One of the burners had evidently been left open and a quantity of gas had collected and on being ignited puffed into the lady's face burning her hair and face in a most painful manner. No medical attendance was required.

Have you anything to say before the court pronounces its decision?"

"Judge," said Eljah, rising politely, "all I've got to say is this. I don't know much about the law, but I do know heady evidence isn't good, and all these lawyers says is heady. I oughter know, for I uz de only man in dat chicken coop dat night, an' I's denied it right erlong."—Chicago Post.

An Apology?

A London journal says that a lively discussion once took place in a town council in the north of England. One thing led to another till one of the disputants gave another the direct. The insulted party rushed forward, and the pair clinched. At that moment the first man exclaimed, "I regret that you are a liar." To the astonishment of every one, the aggrieved party let go his hold. "Oh, well," he said, "if that case I accept the apology. If a man says he is a liar, that is all any gentleman can ask." He did not understand why the bystanders laughed, but the fight was off.

There's Mary, and May, or Minnie or Molly, to find fault with either would surely be folly; for all these names really have meaning the same, and they tell us that Mary's a "grand old name." "Tommy, that is the best helping of plum pudding I ever did see!"

"So do I," Tommy's mother, Tommy said, "Wilt, because he was a Britisher?"

"One more time Tommy," continued his mother, "there was a little boy who kept on eating more and more plum pudding till he burst. He died, Tommy, from eating too much plum pudding."

Tommy finished his helping. "All I wish is that as much plum pudding," he murmured tightly.

"Wilt thou," said his mother, "why did the little boy burst?"

"Not enough left," remarked Tommy and pushed his plate over again.—London Sketch.

AIR GOOD FOR CONSUMPTIVES

Members of Roosevelt's Crew Forbidden to Discuss Controversy With Cook, but Boatswain Murphy Tells of His Experience While Guarding Supplies at Etah—Professor McMillan Finds Many Relics From Former Polar Expeditions.

Sidney, C. B. Sept. 20.—News-paper correspondents returning from Battle Harbor on the steamer Tyranny throw new light on the controversy over the discovery of the north pole. At Battle Harbor they learned from two members of Commander Peary's expedition that Dr. Frederick A. Cook had met them at Etah and had mentioned nothing of the discovery of the pole.

When Harry Whitney, George Norton and Larned went to Etah on the Erik to bring provisions for Commander Peary both Norton and Larned returned back and Whitney obtained permission from Commander Peary to remain at the Etah station. Commander Peary stationed John Murphy, boatswain of the Roosevelt, and William Pritchard, assistant cook of the Roosevelt, at Etah to guard the stores. Murphy, telling of his experience at Etah, said to the newspaper men:

"Commander Peary told me to go ashore at Etah to guard the stores which I saw taken from the Roosevelt and the Erik. Pritchard was with me. Some time last spring a white man came into camp, and Mr. Whitney told me what it was. Dr. Cook. He did not stay long in camp and soon went away. Cook looked tired and worn out and said he was hungry. I had an argument with him, as he claimed that some of the stores that we were guarding belonged to him. He only had two Eskimos with him, and as all his dogs were dead the doctor had to pull his own sledge. Pritchard said these Eskimos told him they had been away, way north."

None of the Peary party at Battle Harbor would discuss what information has been learned from Harry Whitney, as Commander Peary had given orders that the Cook controversy must not be mentioned. It was commonly reported at Battle Harbor, however, that Peary had some difference with Whitney, who decided that instead of returning to Sydney on the Roosevelt he would do some shooting in Greenland.

Cooks Friends But In.
Friends of Dr. Cook here pointed out that when Commander Peary, on his return from the pole, sent for Professor McMillan, who had gone to establish a base of supplies at Cape Morris Jessup, he did not mention in his letter to the professor anything of his discovery of the pole. The message, which was made public by Professor McMillan at Battle Harbor reads:

"S. S. Roosevelt, April 29, 1909.
"My Dear McMillan—Arrived on board yesterday. Northern trip was entirely satisfactory. There is no need of Greenland detour. Captain came on board the twenty-fifth. Concentrate all your energies on that observation and line soundings north from Cape Morris Jessup. The intended supplies for me for this purpose."

COMMANDER PEARY.
The address of the commander of the expedition was given as follows:

THE ROOSEVELT.
Ship on Which Peary Battled With Ice in Northern Seas.

Peary assert that the words in the message, "northern trip entirely satisfactory," indicate clearly that the expedition had accomplished its purpose.

Professor McMillan said at Battle Harbor that he had seen Harry Whitney at Etah, and that Whitney did not tell any one of Dr. Cook's reported discovery of the pole.

It was in an old sail and stores loft in Battle Harbor, Labrador, that Commander Peary told the story to a score or more of correspondents of his journey to the pole. He will head no more trips to the Arctic, nor, for that matter, to the Antarctic. His work in the ice fields is finished.

"I have accomplished the ambition of my life," said the commander. "I shall always be interested in Arctic explorations, but it must now be left to younger men."

McMillan Tells of Discoveries.
Commander Peary often broke his narrative to call upon Professor Donald McMillan, naturalist and geologist of the expedition, to relate some incident of the trip. No less interesting than Peary's dash to the pole were the discoveries of Professor McMillan of relics and stores of seven previous Arctic expeditions, those of General Greeley in 1881-84; Commander Hall in 1871; the Amundsen expedition party of 1901; Sir John Lockwood's expedition; the expedition party of Admiral Sir George Nares in 1875-76, and the expeditions of Commander Peary in 1896 and 1900.

"I shall pay no attention to fake stories or any side issues," said Commander Peary, "that are put out to distract from the main question. 'Has Cook been at the pole?'"

Then he continued: "I do not care to speak of other observations in view of what I claim and I won't say anything more until the statement signed by another is offered, and then I will submit my statement."

"The reaching of the pole," added Peary, "is the proof of man's final conquest of the earth. As it stood with the pole unfound, it was a continual reproach to civilization. The discovery of the south pole may now be looked for as an accepted fact. Work in the Antarctic is quite different from that in the north. An expedition to the north pole must complete its work within the year. No base can be left for another year's operations, while in the Antarctic one can lay a base which will be permanent for the further advance the next year."

That Greenland and the Arctic regions will become a summer resort in time is Commander Peary's confident belief, and Dr. Goodsell, physician of the expedition, asserted that the dry air and constant sunlight of the summer was a fine cure for tuberculosis.

Thus from one subject of Arctic interest to another Commander Peary passed, briefly touching only the material and human interest points which had already gone forward to the world in wireless dispatches.

"Commander Peary, do you believe that the pole can be reached again, and to what do you ascribe your success this time?"

Could Retrace Steps.
"I believe that any member of my party could reach the pole twice out of three times. Just the same as Captain Bartlett could take the Roosevelt through the ice does to Cape Sheridan four out of five times. You get your training as you progress toward the pole. I keep myself sound, clean and straight and this has been of great help in the trials of a rigorous climate."

The story of Professor McMillan on his finding of the relics and stores of earlier expeditions was fraught with interest. On a trip to the westward from the winter quarters at Cape Sheridan to make observations, Professor McMillan came upon some supplies at Fort Conger, which had been left there by the Greeley expedition in 1858-59.

"There were coffee, tea, canned potatoes and ketchup, and I tried them all. It seemed strange to think that 47 out of that party of 25 had died of starvation after they had left these provisions behind. They had to go back under orders and failed to find the relief ship at Cape Sabine."

"Why was it that you and the others did not go to the pole with Commander Peary instead of Henson?" McMillan was asked.

"Because Henson was better fitted than any one of our party," he replied. "He was stronger and had more experience. He was a better sled driver and packer and in every way was the man for it."

Roosevelt Leaves Battle Harbor.
Battle Harbor, Labrador, Sept. 20.—Following a series of cheers and shouts of half a regiment of Labrador fishermen and a farewell salute from the local old cannon which stands near the Marconi station, the Peary expedition steamer Roosevelt sailed for Sydney and New York, proudly flying the flag of the pole flag. This flag was made at Battle Harbor.

The flag is a New York city next November. It is the most important one in the country. It is the only election in which the whole country is interested in the outcome of which seems doubtful. The only other important elections are in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Virginia, where governors are to be elected. In the first the Republicans are expected to hold their own, in the second the Democrats will do their best to win their first year victory, and in Virginia the Democrats have no reason to fear that their past record of victories will be reversed.

MAY UNDERTAKE TO MAKE LONG FLIGHT

Wilbur Wright Talks of Trip From New York to Albany.

New York, Sept. 20.—Upon his arrival here from Dayton, O., Wilbur Wright inspected the field at Governors Island where he and Glenn H. Curtiss are expected to attempt a series of flights over the skyscrapers of Manhattan during the Hudson-Fulton celebration.

"This is splendid," said Mr. Wright, as he viewed the 30 acres of sandy and level made land at the lower end of Governors Island. "This is better than any aerodrome I have ever had."

Mr. Wright declined to say whether he would attempt to fly to Albany during the celebration. "The public demand for new sensations is debauching the science of aviation," he said. "Too many of the men flying now are being led astray by the desire for notoriety. What we want now is not so much longer flights, but more instructive flights. Any attempt on my part to fly to Albany will depend on conditions—the weather, how the engine is running, and my judgment."

HOUSE DYNAMITED
Youngstown Union Fighter and Family Escape Injury.

Youngstown, O., Sept. 20.—Dynamiters wrecked the home of Charles I. Gibson, general manager of the Struthers plant of the American Steel and Tin Plate company. None of the occupants of the house was injured, but all of them were thrown from their beds by the force of the explosion.

A strike has been in progress at the mill for several weeks, and Mr. Gibson has been active in his efforts to secure the reopening of the plant under the open-shop plan. The escape of the Gibson family from injury was remarkable. A large brass shelf, filled with dynamite and fitted with a cap and fuse, was exploded in a cellar window, directly under Mr. Gibson's room. The house was badly damaged.

Rather Ambiguous.
The Rev. Mr. Dozen had not gained the golden opinions of his congregation, who were unanimous in asserting that he was foolish and conceited.

He considered himself greatly slandered and, meeting an old German friend of his in the street one day, began to retail his woes, ending up by saying:

"And the churchwarden actually called me a perfect ass. Mr. cloth-peddler, I think me from resenting insults, but I think I shall refer to it in the pulpit next Sunday. What would you advise?"

"Mine friend," replied the German soothingly, "I know not, but I think that all you can do will be stout to bray for them, as usual."—Pearson's

BY JOHN W. HARDING

NOVELIZED FROM EUGENE WALTER'S GREAT PLAY. Copyright, 1908, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

As time wore on, however, his distrust had vanished, and Mrs. Harris and her daughters had become a necessity to him. He was being civilized. He preferred Emma to the others, which is saying that she was the person he liked best on earth, but his manner of showing it had been repellent because misunderstood. In the first place she had hated him for his supposed injustice to her husband, whereas, having read Brooks through from the start, he despised him and would not help him even to make her lot easier. When reawakened distrust, battling with unwillingness to believe that his high estimate of her had been unmerited, had caused him to try her out relentlessly on the occasion of her appeal for Brooks, alone with him and at his mercy in his rooms, she had seen that a warm heart, full of pure regard for her, beat beneath his forbidding exterior. From that night she had learned to respect him and judge him at his real value. His actions and idiosyncrasies received at last their true interpretation.

As for Williams, the proof that he had not been deceived in her fortified his faith and made him really happy. He was getting old. He had won his hard fought, lifelong battle with the world and was as rich as he cared to be. The devil was disposed to turn monk. The yearning for affection, not demonstrative, but existent, which came with the approach of life's sunset and which was not to be found elsewhere was gratified there. He put on slippers, smoked his pipe, had his favorite chair, expressed his views in his authoritative way and liked to be consulted.

But he never ceased to be impressed with the ostentatious proclivities and aristocratic airs of Mrs. Harris and Beth, though he laughed indulgently at many of the mother's foibles. To him the two women represented the beau monde and were authorities on all that pertained thereto. He deemed it a privilege to place one of his automobiles at the family's exclusive command, and it was the most luxurious vehicle money could buy. That he did not give it outright was because he knew their circumstances would not enable them to maintain it.

Emma was different from her mother and sister. She never gave herself airs. He felt himself nearer to her, and the more intimate they grew the more she became endeared to him. She had changed much since she had left Brooks. A spirituality that he had not, of course, known in her in the old days had increased the charm of her personality, but her sensitive, unaffected manner, her gentleness, were always the same. More than once he had surprised a wistful, faraway look in her eyes, a fleeting expression of melancholy, and his solitude had been aroused. Something caused him to refrain from questioning her, but he did considerable pondering about it.

"What a shame it is that a girl like Emma isn't married to some nice fellow worthy of her," he remarked one evening, uttering his thoughts aloud. "There are some things that no man can understand, and this is one of them—that she should be handcuffed to a dirty scoundrel like Brooks."

"Captain," ejaculated Mrs. Harris, raising her hands, "you mustn't! You know it is understood that the person's name is never to be mentioned."

"I know," he said, "but you can't alter facts because being disagreeable, you don't want to remember 'em. Brooks is a disagreeable fact, a darned disagreeable fact, and he's Emma's husband into the bargain. As such he ain't to be ignored altogether, because he stands between her and the fair pasture lands."

"Why, captain," smiled Emma, "I'm happy enough. What more could I want than the peace I have?"

"Are you sure, girl?" he answered, shaking his head doubtfully. "I don't know—I don't know."

"Certainly she's happy," put in Beth. "And, as for getting married again, I should think she's had enough of that to last her all her life."

"It's your turn now, Beth," observed Emma.

"Me? Oh, I shall never marry!"

"It doesn't follow because I have been unfortunate that you should be," said Emma. "It is easy to conceive of perfect happiness with the right husband."

"Of course I mean I won't marry until the proper man comes along. I should never make the mistake of binding myself to such a man as—as that beast, or even Jimsy, for instance, though I'm not comparing Jimsy with him in any way."

"What's the matter with Smith?" grunted the captain.

"Well, you would never think of him as a lover. He's so old and unromantic. Besides, his education's terribly defective."

"And he isn't rich," added her mother.

"When Beth marries I hope it will be to a gentleman in the position to keep her as she ought to be kept."

"I wonder why Jimsy doesn't come around any more," said Beth. "He hasn't been here since Christmas."

"He says he's too busy," observed Mrs. Harris. "Captain, you must be working him to death."

"Smith's a good man, a corking good man," replied the captain thoughtfully. "He's doing more work than any three. There ain't no necessity that I know of for him to work all night, though, if that's what he's doing."

Emma appeared to be absolutely indifferent to the turn the conversation had taken, though in truth she was listening greedily to Williams' encomiums.

"I've got to go," went on the captain. "I've often thought that a man like Smith would be just the right kind of a husband for Emma."

"Like Jimsy?" Mrs. Harris laughed. She did not know whether he was joking or not, but thought he was.

This time a sudden flush dyed Emma's cheeks and deepened over her face to the very ears. No one noticed him when he was leaning forward with his hands between his knees, as he was then, his bushy eyebrows bent in thought, it was impossible to tell where he was looking.

"That's what I said," he emphasized. "Take Smith himself, for the sake of argument. We're talking among ourselves, so it don't matter, as it won't go any further. Suppose Emma'd married him? Is his heart all right? Is he on the level? I'd bank on him, and that's more'n I'd say of any other man I know. Is he capable? Reason as they make 'em. Is he good looking? He ain't bad looking, and with that smile of his he has most good looks I've seen beat a mile. Beth says he ain't poetic and all that sort of thing. Maybe—maybe, but what of that? Also she says he ain't what you'd call educated. That may be, too, but when he wants to be can bring an amount of cold sense to bear that'll upset most men's logic and give a bluff no chance. He'll go far if he keeps on, for all his slow ways, and let me tell you it ain't the man who starts off at top speed that always wins the race."

"What you say may be all true, but these qualities haven't made Jimsy rich so far, and I doubt if they ever will. A man can't have everything, but money, as I've often told my girls, makes up for a lot of shortcomings, and without it—what? Here's Emma, married for seven years, separated from her husband, can't get a divorce unless it's of the Dakota sort, which I'd never consent to, hasn't got a cent in the world and couldn't collect a cent of alimony if she had the right to it because the beast's a pauper."

"No, and if he were as wealthy as the grand Duke of Saxe to death before I'd touch any money or anything else belonging to him," commented Emma.

"Mrs. Harris," answered the captain, with deep feeling, "money, while it's a whole lot, ain't everything, as I've found, though it's taken me sixty-five years to do it. It's no fault of Emma's that she's poor, and I tell you that if she was to marry a man like Smith I'd settle $500,000 worth of Latin-American line stock on her for a wedding present. I would, by Sam, ma'am!"

"You would do that?" asked Mrs. Harris, overwhelmed with astonishment.

"This minute."

"Well!"

It was all she could find to say about the reiteration.

But if the family were amazed Williams was evidently alarmed at having allowed his feelings to get the better of his discretion in this way, for he lapsed into gloomy silence and very soon departed abruptly.

CHAPTER XXIV.

MRS. BROOKS would like to see you, sir. I told him you were in, but he would not come up and asked me to let you know he was downstairs."

"Tell him it's all right. I'll see him."

"You mean that he's to come up?"

"Yes, if he doesn't mind."

The landlady went out, gathering from the visitor's unusual request and her boarder's reply that there had been trouble between them. Jimsy pushed away the book he had been reading and leaned back in his chair to await his former friend's coming.

Brooks shuffled rather than walked in. He did not offer to shake hands, but, with a subdued "Hello, Jimsy," seated himself on the edge of the armchair that in former days he occupied as his own. Then he seemed to forget where he was, sank back, shrinking into his overcoat, and sat as though stupefied, twisting his hat in his hands slowly and mechanically.

Smith was shocked at the change in his appearance. His face was white and thin, and the eyes, which were almost expressionless, were deep sunk in the sockets. There was stubble on his chin; his formerly neatly plastered hair was disheveled.

"Boy, you're ill," said Jimsy with concern. "Let me get a bracer for you."

S.S.S. REMOVES BLOOD HUMORS

Every pore and gland of the skin is employed in the necessary work of preserving its smooth, even texture, softening and cleansing it, and regulating the temperature of our bodies. This is done by an evaporation through each tiny outlet, which goes on continually day and night. When the blood becomes infected with humors and acids a certain percentage of these impurities also pass off with the natural evaporation, and their sour, fiery nature irritates and inflames the skin, and dries up its natural oils, causing pimples, boils, pustules or some itching rash, or hard, scaly skin affection. S.S.S. cures skin troubles of every kind by neutralizing the acids and removing the humors from the blood. S.S.S. cools the acid-heated circulation, builds it up to its normal strength and thickness, multiplies its nutritious, red corpuscles, and enriches it in every way. Then the skin, instead of being irritated and diseased by the acrid matter, is nourished, soothed and softened by this cooling, healthy stream of blood. S.S.S., the greatest of blood purifiers, expels all foreign matter and surely cures Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum and all other diseases and affections of the skin. It removes pimples, blackheads, and other unsightly blemishes from the skin and assists in restoring a good complexion. Book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice desired free to all who write.

HIS NEW SONG

Now Governor Harmon wants three million dollars for a new penitentiary; his Democratic secretary of the state board of agriculture wants $300,000 for new pig pens, chicken coops and bee hives at the state fair grounds; every Democratic board of trustees and superintendent of state institutions want a hundred thousand or more for new buildings and improvements.

And it is said the governor has promised them all. Incidentally, it may be remarked that the governor is the same Judson Harmon who, some few months since, was howling about Republican extravagance in the state house.

No wonder Governor Harmon talks of increasing taxes!

At the rate he is increasing expenses, actual and promised, if taxes were doubled the state would be bankrupt in a year. A real business governor would talk about cutting down expenses to equal income instead of boosting taxes away beyond human endurance to meet the fads and fancies of theorists and dreamers and the demands of practical politicians.

Parenthetically it may be observed that it was under a Democratic administration that a veteran was negligently scalded to death in a bath tub at the Sandusky soldiers' home.

Had a Republican commandant been in charge and had there been a Republican governor the yellow press of the state would have turned black in the face proclaiming the "shameful inefficiency" of Republican office holders.

It is announced that there will be a real investigation of America by the English suffragettes. Some of them will get married if they don't look out, and then the poor husband gets all the talk.

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

From The Age September 20, 1909. C. L. Cassingham and a party of Cleveland capitalists Thursday night secured a franchise in New Philadelphia and within a year will have Tuscarawas county covered with a network of wires. Manager Cassingham of the Citizens' Telephone Co., has not closed the deal with the U. S. Telephone Co., whereby subscribers can have long distance service. It is believed however, that the differences will be settled in time to have the connection made by Dec. 15.

PITCHER WAS EXPECTED BY TWO TEAMS

There was a funny mix-up Saturday over the services of Pitcher George who twirled for Coshocton. The southern leaguer is staying at Dennison, and over the phone agreed with Capt. Stewart to twirl for Coshocton. It seems in the mean time West Lafayette had bargained for him through his manager Mr. Stark. Matters were evened by Coshocton sending Cotton Burrell to Lafayette, and he won his game 6 to 2 against the Zanesville Orioles, the latter getting only two hits off of him.

BROOKLYN TEAM MAY PLAY GAME IN COSHOCTON

Manager Neighbor of the Coshocton team has written the Brooklyn national league team, playing this week at Pittsburgh, for a game here. It is hoped they will stop off on their way back east as they go through here twice within the next ten days. It seems assured that the Columbus association team will play at least one game on the Coshocton lot.

RED WILL PLAY IN THE EAST

Red Williams leaves next week for Worcester, Mass., where he plays first rush on the polo team the coming year. Mrs. Williams will accompany him.

What Would He Do With It? A farmer owned a dog—a very good, high bred and thoroughly trained dog—that every morning for three years chased a railway train that ran past the farm. The farmer and his wife were watching the persistent but vain pursuit one warm morning. "I wonder," the wife said, "what makes that foolish dog chase the train so persistently." "Never thought about that," replied the farmer, "but I've often wondered what he would do if he caught it."

AN AFRICAN RAILWAY.

The Way It Was Described by an Educated Native.

C. J. Phillips, business agent in Uganda of the Church Missionary Society, throws light upon the workings of the native mind by quoting a remarkable letter in which a native member of the katikiki's prime minister's party gives a description of the Uganda railway.

"My friend, I can tell you the Europeans have done a marvelous thing to make the railway and the trains. They fasten ten or fifteen houses together and attach them to a fireplace which is as big as an elephant, and the road it goes on is as smooth as the stem of a plantain. It goes as fast as a swallow flying, and everything you see outside flits past you like a spark from a fire. If it were to drop off one of the bridges not one in it would be saved, for it goes dreadfully quick. The hills it passes are as high as those of Koki, and they have bridged over great valleys which are as deep as that you see when you look from the top of Namirembo, so deep that you cannot see the bottom when you are going over them."

Later there follows a description of a ship: "It is as deep as our two storied house and as wide as the king's road in Mengo, and it is as long as from the katikiki's fence to the gate of the king's inclosure. It has three tall poles in it and a big throat, out of which smoke comes, which is as wide as the new drum in the church at Namirembo. The rooms in it go down three stories, and the boards of these I cannot describe to you, for such have not been seen before. There is a lot of metal work about them, too, but these also I cannot describe, for it is so fine. There are children on board and a flock of sheep and places to wash in attached to every place where a chief sleeps, such as even our king has never possessed."—London Strand Magazine.

Old Book Terms.

The words folio, quarto, octavo, duodecimo and the like have almost if not quite lost their original meaning. At first they had reference only to the number of leaves into which the sheets used in making the books were folded. Thus if these sheets were folded once so as to form two leaves or four pages the book was called a folio; if the sheets were folded twice so as to form four leaves the book was called a quarto; if they were folded four times so as to form eight leaves the book was called an octavo, and so on.

Penitence.

"I suppose you're sorry now?" asked the prison visitor, according to the Philadelphia Ledger.

The young man who had stolen $17,000 and spent it in sixteen weeks sighed through the bars. "Oh, yes," he answered, "I tried to cut too much of a spurge. The money ought to have lasted me a week longer."

Just Suits Him.

Friend—Why do you encourage these woman's suffrage meetings? Surely you don't approve of them. Husband—Approve? With all my heart! I can come home as late as I like now without finding my wife at home to ask questions.—Fliegende Blätter.

No Chance.

"I think it's wrong for a married man to gamble."

"It's worse than wrong. It's idiotic. His wife gives him fits if he loses and confiscates the proceeds if he wins."—Louisville Courier Journal.

Value of Albumen.

Albumen is by all odds the most important of the ingredients of our food. It is that part of the food upon which nutrition mainly depends. Take away the albumen and the gluten, which is probably the same substance in another form, and starvation must speedily follow, no matter how liberally we may partake of starch, sugar and fat.

Folds and schus over the shoulders are quite a feature of evening gowns.

The scarf which matches the gown is becoming one of the familiar features for the light wrap.

The coarser weaves of tussore, which have the preference just now, look at a distance like a piece of rough canvas.

Sleeveless coats with a color contrasting with the gown under them are in growing favor as the season advances.

Among the popular fabrics are the new two-tone changeable satins, the face being of one color and the back of another.

One of the oddities of the season is the introduction of the metallic and soangles effects among the cottons and linens.

Dog collars of velvet are especially pretty when embroidered in tiny buds and flowers or a spray of foliage, in natural colors.

The wide shirtwaists, striped with color matching the gowns with which they are worn, are in great favor with the girls just now.

A GOOD BILL

A Fashion Chat on the Styles of the Day.

The midsummer season finds but few women who do not feel the need of additions to their wardrobe, particularly in the form of shirt waists or over-blouses. These are worn to lengthen the life of more expensive or they may be worn over the already plain separate blouses. One of particularly dressy waists is the one shown in No. 3165. The plaited sections create pleasing fullness over the bust and a shaped broad trimmed suspender section cut in one piece with the bodice is an attractive and novel feature. As shown, this over-blouse was worn over a perfectly plain gingham.

For the dressy, more elaborate waist, No. 3147 will be found a most desirable model. This is arranged in clusters across the front distribute a desirable fulness, deeper folds are formed near the armhole giving breadth to the figure. A cluster of narrow folds arranged on each side of the center back relieve the fulness and add to the attractiveness of the garment and renders it more attractive. The embroidery design applied to the waist is not an essential to its attractiveness, but while it adds to its beauty and will certainly prove charming if used, a waist of this type and material untrimmed except by folds and which will be found very dressy and cool on hot days. As will be noted short sleeves are illustrated, but long sleeves are preferred; these are also included in the pattern.

A pretty effect is a shirt waist of madras, percale or gingham is shown in No. 3165. The plaited effect produced by the arrangement of tucks is most attractive and is different from the straight tucks so frequently seen while the no collar and no sleeves are a correct finish for a waist of this character. The trimming observed may be formed of soutache applied as shown or may be replaced by a wide band if desired.

For the dressy, more elaborate waist a better model than No. 3147 would be hard to conceive. The tucks on each side of the center stitched straight down from neck to waist give the appearance of a plaited bodice, while a long deep tuck extending from the waist line in front to the waist line in back is a pleasing feature and is worn by most women. The collar illustrated is one of the newest styles now being exploited by the leading department stores for wear with tail and evening dresses. Widely striped batiste, percale, or madras will develop attractive effects by this pattern.

The combinations of color seen this season in striped fabrics are particularly alluring, especially those showing rose or blue stripes against an ecru background. With waists of ecru, rose or blue, waists of these stripes are particularly alluring.

Pictorial Pattern No. 3165 is a Ladies' Over-blouse cut in sizes 2, 2 1/2, 3, 3 1/2, 4, 4 1/2, 5, 5 1/2, 6, 6 1/2, 7, 7 1/2, 8, 8 1/2, 9, 9 1/2, 10, 10 1/2, 11, 11 1/2, 12, 12 1/2, 13, 13 1/2, 14, 14 Moon Blunders.

The moon has innocently been the cause of much blundering on the part of authors. Wilkie Collins in some mysterious fashion made it rise on one important occasion in the west. Rider Haggard in "King Solomon's Mines" contrives an eclipse of the new moon for the benefit of his readers, and Coleridge ingeniously places a star between the horns of the crescent moon as she rises in the east.

COSHOCTON AMATEUR HELD CANTON LEAGUERS DOWN TO SCORE OF 6-0

Doc Abbott and Red Williams were Both in the Game
—Visitors Did Not Score in First Four Innings.

Although the Canton big league team did win from Coshocton Saturday by 6-0 score, the game was one of the best seen here this season and the Coshocton fans should feel proud that a team of home amateurs could hold down a team of professional men. Even teams in Canton's own league have been defeated by her at greater odds than this. The Coshocton team should be congratulated. Doc Abbott and Red Williams both professional men and both old Coshocton men were in the game and played hard.

For the first four innings Canton did not make a score. Then they took a brace and began running them in making two in the fifth, three in the sixth and one in the seventh.

Biery was the first man to score. He reached first on an error of Hook's was taken to second by a sacrifice and scored when J. Dawson made a hit. Dawson went to second on the throw home and stole third. The next man up knocked a high one to center field which fell into the glove of "Cotton" Tish. The next man was forced out at first.

In the sixth Miller the first man up got a hit and was advanced to second by a single of Drumm's, and stole third. Strum popped out to Williams. Biery knocked one out to Powelson in left making two outs with two bases full. Miller then scored by a squeezed play. Hook at third lost track of the ball while Drumm was on the bag and was watching the hands of George thinking that he had it. Stewart was the man with the ball and before Hook knew what was happening he saw the ball fly before his hands out into left field and Drumm scored on the play. For a moment the rooters felt like mobbing Hook or Stear but they finally forgave them and it was forgotten. Dawson scored after making a single and being advanced by hits of the following two men up.

The game was interesting throughout and should teams like Canton be run in here more often a base ball interest would surely grow and some day might develop into Coshocton have a league team.

The score:
Coshocton AB R H PO A E
Abbott 3 0 2 2 0 1
Hook 3 0 1 1 2 2

FOOTBALL PROSPECTS

Gridiron Practice at Big Universities to Start Shortly.

TIGERS TO HAVE NEW MACHINE

Princeton Men in Struggle For Survival—Harvard Keen to Maintain Its Supremacy, While Yale is Eager to Get Back Into the "Win" Column.

Although real football practice will not start until the middle of September, the big universities east and west are laying plans which indicate that they expect to make a strenuous campaign. This is particularly the case with Harvard, Yale and Princeton, and it need occasion little surprise if these three institutions start work earlier than usual. A few years ago it was the custom of these universities to frown on all preliminary practice before the last week in September, but this year all of them will be formally at work by the middle of the month and some of them secretly some time before this.

There are different reasons for this anxiety to get started. Yale is still smarting because of the defeat administered by Harvard last fall. The Elis took their beating gracefully, but they set to work before the snow was off the ground in the winter to prepare for the coming season. Yale has triumphed over Harvard so consistently on the gridiron that the Elis are desperate to turn the tables this fall.

Harvard is just as keen to maintain its supremacy. The crimson football machine has just begun to find itself. A new coaching system has made good where so many others failed. Consequently the desire of Harvard to maintain this brief superiority is just as potential as Yale's determination for revenge.

At Princeton there will be a keen struggle for survival. The Tigers have lost so consistently to Yale and other colleges which used to be mere practice for them have advanced so rapidly that Princeton's prestige is in grave danger. Princeton men know this, and a brand new machine has been intrusted with the task of rejuvenating football there. The fact that Cornell has secured, and probably for good, the date Princeton long tried to get from Harvard has helped to rouse the spirit of Princeton. Now nothing but a victory over Yale will rehabilitate the Tigers.

The University of Pennsylvania authorities are not worrying about their future. They still have their annual Thanksgiving day game with Cornell, a date the Ithacans will probably have for years to come. The only thing that bothers the Quakers is that the Michigan game taken on to replace Harvard does not draw much better than such games as Lafayette and not nearly so well as the Indians and Cornell. This year ends the second two year contract with Michigan. Nobody knows whether the two will play again or not. If Michigan rejoins the western conference, which does not look likely, she would hardly be able to remain with the east. But if Michigan continues to hold out there is no reason why she should not welcome a continuance of the present relations with Pennsylvania.

As for Cornell, the Ithacans may be expected to continue the improvement they have shown for a number of years. The addition of the Harvard game has given Cornell an importance she never enjoyed before. It will also serve to bring out all the football ability and fight Cornell possesses. Pennsylvania men have long boasted that they had Cornell beaten before the Ithacans took the field. If there was ever any truth in this a Cornell victory over Harvard will make this final battle of the year between Cornell and Pennsylvania something worth going miles to see.

Several slight changes have been made in football rules for the coming season, as shown in the official football guide which has just been issued. One alteration concerns the defending team when a touchback has been scored and another the value of a field goal.

The usual method of again putting the ball in play when a touchback was made was for the defending team to kick goal from its own twenty-five yard line. This gave that team a poor chance to work the ball out of its own territory, especially in case a strong wind was blowing against them. But under the new rules the defending team will be able to kick out from the twenty-five yard line after a touchback has been scored or to put the ball in play by a scrimmage on the same mark.

The value of the goal kick has been reduced from four points to three, which change is regarded with much favor by football fans.

ORIOLES MAY TROT OUT A FOOTBALL TEAM

The Orioles base ball team will hold a meeting at the Smoke house at 7:30 Wednesday evening. An effort will be made to organize a football team for the coming year.

HISTORY OF TWO BRAVE REGIMENTS

The Age has been furnished with brief histories of the 51st and 80th regiments, which held their annual reunion at New Philadelphia last Friday and to which many Coshocton veterans belong.

The Fifty-first Regiment, O. V. I., was originally recruited in Tuscarawas and Coshocton counties. The first company, A, was recruited by Capt. M. H. Bartleson and on Sept. 7, 1861, the oath was administered to the members and order to report at 9 o'clock on Monday, Sept. 9, 1861, on the public square this city, which they did, and marched to the grounds of the Tuscarawas County Agricultural society, christened "Camp Meigs," where they built barracks and prepared for active service. On Sept. 17, 1861, Co. A, was mustered into the service of the United States by a U. S. mustering officer Sunday morning, Nov. 3, 1861, the regiment proceeded by rail to Wells-ville, Ohio, where transports were furnished for a trip down the Ohio river to Cincinnati and then to Louisville, Ky., thence to Camp Wickliffe, Ky., where the regiment was in camp until February 1862, when they had a nine day's trip on the Ohio and Cumberland rivers to Nashville, Tenn., when they performed provost duty until July 10, 1862, when the race was made to beat Bragg across Kentucky to Louisville. Oct. 8, 1862, had some trouble with General Bragg at Perryville, Ky., when he concluded that Murfreesboro, Tenn., was a more healthy locality than Kentucky. Took part in the battle of Stone River as well as that of Chickamauga, later on and the battle of Lookout Mountain, above the clouds, and Mission Ridge. On Jan. 1, 1864, most of the regiment "veteranized" and were given a thirty day furlough. Upon returning to the field active operations were at once commenced on the Atlanta campaign, participating in all of the engagements in which the Fourth Corps, Army of the Cumberland, took part. Then back to Nashville, Tenn., where in December 1864, General Hood's army was completely destroyed. In the spring of 1865 the regiment was transferred to East Tennessee to take part in the "On to Richmond," which Grant had inaugurated. After the surrender of Nashville, Tenn., and to Texas where the regiment was mustered out Oct. 2, 1865, at Victoria, in that state, and discharged at Camp Chase, Ohio a month later.

Deaths in the 51st Regiment, O. V. I., from Sept. 1, 1908 to Sept. 17, 1909, and reported to the Secretary: David Greger, Co., E. April 15, 1909; Martin V. Huff, Co. K 1908; William A. Johnson, Baid, Nov. 9, 1908; Thomas M. Jones, Co. E. Aug. 19 1909; Samuel Littick, Co. F. March 2, 1909; Thomas Milligan, Co. C. April 15, 1909; David Trushal, Co. B. June 16, 1908; John G. Wise, Co. B. 1909; Jacob Wise, Lieut. Co. H. March 26, 1909; Denton Young, Band, July 5, 1908.

Eightieth Regiment, O. V. I. The Eightieth Regiment, O. V. I. was composed of two companies from Carroll county, three and four from Tuscarawas. The Tuscarawas companies were known as "B. C." "E" and "K". These four companies and the six companies in the Fifty-first Regiment formed the largest force that represented Tuscarawas county in the Civil war. The Eightieth Regiment was organized at Camp Meigs, Canal Dover fair grounds, marching from there on February 17, 1862, through New Philadelphia to Uhrichsville, where they took a train for Columbus, then went on to Cincinnati by rail and from the latter city took a steamboat for Paducah, Ky. From the latter place the regiment started up the Tennessee river on April 20, 1862, and became a part of Gen. Pope's division. On May 9th, the regiment came under fire for the first time at Farmington. On June 22nd, a forced march of 46 miles was made and then the battle of luka occurred, where forty-six men were killed and wounded. Col. Bartleson and Adjutant Philpot being among the latter. The next battle in which the regiment participated was at Corinth, Miss. The other engagements were the siege of Vicksburg, the battle of Jackson, Miss., where the Eightieth made the charge and left one-third of the men bleeding on the sod, the awful fight at Mission Ridge, which cost the regiment one hundred men. On October 12, 1864, the regiment participated in the famous defense of Resaca against Hood's army of 28,000 men. After that the regiment was ordered to Atlanta, Ga., and went on the famous march to the sea with Gen. Wm. Sherman. Two hundred and nine members of the Eightieth Regiment gave up their lives for the Stars and Stripes—killed in battle, mortally wounded or died of disease and were buried in their blue uniforms. The regiment was mustered out of the service at Little Rock, Arkansas, August 15, 1865, and were discharged on August 25, 1865.

POTTERIES MAY BE CONSOLIDATED

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Sept. 20.—It is possible that before the year ends certain financial interests of Pittsburgh will become identified with the pottery industry of this city and vicinity, and that a number of potteries now operated independently will be under one head.

A plan has been outlined, but it does not contemplate a merger of all potteries, but just sufficient to give the business while they plan to build a large and modern property and prepare for extensive operations.

While it is not a possibility to announce names at this moment, the plan is said to be backed by ample capital, and that besides many Pittsburgh capitalists being interested in the deal, New York will also have representation.

Before the passage of the tariff bill, that should the pottery schedule be passed over favorably, a corporation would be formed for the purpose of buying control of the majority of American general ware potteries. This plan, however, has been thrice tried and thrice failure has been written over the months of effort.

Every time an effort has been made to form a consolidation of the pottery interests, it has been flooded with so much water that the accomplishment of the purpose was impossible.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surface of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in their curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

JEALOUSY PROMPTS DIABOLICAL CRIME Woman Returns to Complete Human Butchery.

Waterbury, Conn., Sept. 20.—At the coroner's investigation into the murder of Bronick Kulvinski, a saloon-keeper, for whose death Sophia Kritchman, a well-educated Lithuanian music teacher, and Joseph Pecznitis, a bartender, are held, sensational developments were uncovered. Jealousy seems to have been the motive for the crime.

An important witness is Victoria Dalton, aged 19. According to the testimony the Kritchman woman took the little girl for a walk. They reached the woods where Kulvinski, who had been shot, was lying in a pool of blood. The woman poked the body with a stick and found that the man was still alive. She threatened to kill the girl if she told what she had seen.

The woman came to this city, where Pecznitis is employed, and the two returned to the scene of the crime, where, it is alleged, the woman slashed Kulvinski's throat and Pecznitis fired three more shots into his body. The dying man was found by several boys later in the day.

STRIKERS USE VIOLENCE

Interurban Car Wrecked Between Omaha and Council Bluffs.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 20.—An interurban car was wrecked by strike sympathizers between here and Council Bluffs and the conductor hit in the face with a brick. Trolley ropes were cut on several cars in this city. Five arrests were made.

Of the 54 men brought in from Chicago a few were put to work, but no great effort was made to get the service up to normal. It is understood, however, that when the new men expected today arrive, the company will try to run cars on schedule. Cars were placed in the car barns for the use of the imported men, and arrangements have been made for feeding them at the barns. After the rioting at Council Bluffs all cars in that city were taken off.
